CARING RELATIONSHIP INVENTORY (CRI)

The Caring Relationship Inventory (CRI) measures essential elements of caring (or love) in the two-person relationship existing between a man and a woman. The Inventory consists of 83 items to which the examinee responds, either true or false, first as applied to the other member of the couple (spouse, fiancé, etc.) and second as applied to their "ideal." Development of the Inventory was based on responses of criterion groups of successfully married couples, troubled couples in counseling and divorced individuals. Five elements of love are measured by independent scales: Affection, Friendship, Eros, Empathy and Self-Love, plus two scales based on concepts of Being Love and Deficiency Love.
